The Organizations

Founded in 1982, The Capital Region Center for the Arts in Education brings schools a comprehensive professional development program that supports teachers in the use of strategies for imaginative learning across the curriculum. The Center for AIE works in partnership with pre-K through grade twelve educators, professional development providers, and degree-granting teacher education programs.

The Capital Area School Development Association (CASDA) is a study council affiliated with the School of Education at the University at Albany. Incorporated in 1949 by the State Education Department of the University of the State of New York, CASDA is one of the oldest study councils in the United States. There are 113 school districts and private institutions affiliated with CASDA. The primary purpose of CASDA is to serve as a cooperative planning, research and development unit through which affiliated schools and educational agencies may more effectively define and fulfill their purposes and functions in serving the educational needs of their communities.
